Seven New Doctors Graduated by the Medical College.

GALA OCCASION FOR THE COLLEGE.

The Graduation Exercises Followed by a Banquet at the Copeland.

Last evening was a proud time for the seven young people who graduated from the Kansas Medical college, and over 400 people shared the pleasures of the evening at Library hall.

The occasion was the fourth annual commencement of the institution. At 8:15 o'clock, General J. C. Caldwell, Judge A. H. Horton, Judge Guthrie, Rev. L. Blakesley, J. S. Collins and Doctors Stewart, Colcord, Sheldon, C. S. McClinton, J. C. McClinton, R. E. McVeay, W. E. McVey, Lindsay, Magee, Eastman, Alkire, Schenck, Mitchell and Minney stood upon the stage and were seated. Most of these gentlemen were members of the family.

Dr. J. E. Minney was master of ceremonies and in a short speech, welcomed the assembly present. He outlined the short history of the college. Suddenly he stopped short. The audience looked expectant, as if something good was coming. The doctor then said: "You know some times people getstage-fright. Well, we've got it now."

He proceeded with a determination he concealed with his tail, and many of the audience thought the stop was made merely for a joke.

He said that in the words of the poet, the Kansas Medical College intended to do her level best. He also said that the doctors believed that God created man, male and female, and that they have rights which no human being has the right to dispute.

This statement was made in referring to the lady graduates.

Watson orchestra then played the overture "Fest" by Latam.

The invocation was pronounced by Rev. L. Blakesley.

The orchestra followed with the "Mill in the Forest" by Edenberg.

General J. C. Caldwell was next introduced and delivered the principal address.

There is no limit to his knowledge of ancient history and his address was very interesting. Among other things he mentioned the large assemblage of doctors from all over the world which meets in Rome today and said that they would do a vast amount of good.

In speaking of the science of surgery at the present time, he said: "Science speaks and that man cannot live without it, but man now, thanks to our medical science." He said that medical science was born in the early part of the 17th century R. C. and Hippocrates was the father of medicine. In conclusion he said: "It has been demonstrated beyond doubt that tuberculosis, or consumption, is not an hereditary disease." He related the wonderful experiments of Prof. Tissier, in speaking of the condition of the country at the present time, he said: "I am not afraid of this country falling into the hands of anarchists, or socialists, or those wanting to turn the Jews around, but I am afraid of the negroes who, enjoying the privileges, neglects his duties."

"We live in an age when nothing is sacred from criticism. Keep in the current, not out of it."

Officer's "Orphans" was then rendered by the orchestra.

Dr. Richard E. McVey then read a carefully prepared paper to the students, in which he gave them some wholesome advice.

The orchestra then played "British Dreams" by Holst, after which, Dr. Minney introduced Judge A. H. Horton. The seven graduates, Messrs. Albert E. Guadry, Elsworth H. Evans, Reuben L. Buckmaster, William H. Rodgers, John A. Edwards, and Misses Harriet E. Adams and Mary Violet Church, then filed and stood before Judge Horton, who delivered an impressive address to them, and conferred the diplomas. The prize of a fine surgeon's pocket case for the student was awarded Miss Harriet E. Adams. The prize was given by Swift & Holtday and Harry Robinson.

The orchestra then played Sousa's "Occidental" march, and the audience dispersed feeling more than repaid for the trouble of attending.

But the evening's entertainment did not end here, for the medical people, for the faculty, students, and their friends, who went to the Copeland hotel, where an elaborate banquet had been prepared.

Martin Cobble, who, with Mrs. Cobble, is in jail for assault, says he is willing to work out his wife's sentence if the sheriff would let him.

Governor Lewelling has offered a reward of $200 for the arrest and conviction of the unknown murderer of John C. Wilkinson of Ness county.

Receiver J. C. Wilson of the Santa Fe is sick at his home on Topeka avenue, and is unable to be at his desk today. His condition is not serious.

Swift & Holliday's thermometer registered 13 degrees above zero at 6 o'clock this morning, which was a fulfillment of the prophecy of the weather bureau.

C. M. McDaniels gave a stereopticon entertainment at the First Congregational church last evening, for the buying of a new piano for Christian Endeavors.

Bruce Hadcox gave himself up to Justice Chesney. He was wanted for running over a woman on Washington. Hadcox says he couldn't hold the mule.

Slim Bear's telephone company is now trying to get a franchise in Lawrence.

The proposed ordinance will be presented to the council at its meeting next Monday evening.

As the coffee cups were set down, Dr. W. E. McVey arose and in a short speech gave the subjects of the toast.

The first toast was delivered by Dr. Mary Violet Church. It was entitled: "Class of '94." Dr. Church made a blessing speech, in which she wished good luck and prosperity to all, especially the class of '94.

"Our Alma Mater" was given by Dr. Elsworth H. Evans, in an entertaining way.

One of the alumni will respond to the toast "The Baby," said the toast-master, "and I think that Dr. Clarence McClinton can give us some advanced views on the subject." Dr. McClinton is still a bachelor and when the announcement was made it created much laughter. But the doctor did not shrink from his task. "Now, what do I know about a baby to begin with, said he.

"The fact of it is, if I had a baby I wouldn't know what to do with it." This was followed by great laughter. The doctor likened the college to a baby, as it is but four years old.

On Minney has something to say to us," said the toast-master. As soon as that gentleman swallowed half an orange that he had been leisurely munching, he picked up a handsome physician's hand bag and said that Dr. J. C. McClinton had offered it as a prize for the best gentleman student. As it was found that the gentleman's ranking was so close that there really was no "best," Dr. McClinton turned in and purchased seven of these handsome hand bags and each graduate received one.

In each one was a letter to the graduate from Dr. McClinton, which Dr. Minney read aloud. One read: "My congratulations for your year's hard work."

Another said: "A bag full of best wishes."

Dr. Minney got one of the sentences twisted pretty badly. He read: "A bag full of congestions." "That is congratulations," yelled Dr. McClinton.

The letter in the hand bag for Dr. Harriet E. Adams read: "Ladies don't have pockets. This will hold your prize pocket case." Dr. H. E. Adair responded to the toast. "Man is fearfully and wonderfully made." His speech was amusing, and contained jokes on the different members of the graduating class. Dr. Magee gave "The Doctor's Wing."

He said that every doctor ought to have one, and that the wife must expect to have to help her husband and to know always where everything was about the house.

Dr. W. E. McVey then bade the guests good-night on behalf of the faculty of the Kansas Medical college. The banquet was given complimentary to the students of the college by the faculty.

It was a generous gift and was thoroughly appreciated by all present. The first year, the college had twenty-two students, the second twenty-eight, the third thirty-five, and the fourth, or this year, forty-three. This shows a steady increase in the membership.

The Kansas Medical college is the only public institution founded since the boom, which has been able to pull through, and the praise is due the doctors of this city who have worked so hard to make it a success.

Doctors Rafted of Bolton, Taylor, of Berryton, and Dr. Eastman were the guests of the faculty.
